Hi

I'm not one to tie up loose ends, or stamp on a moral of the story, or even offer a legend to help you read a map, but I will say that this is the end.

And we suggest that you give our gifts away. Or burn them. Possession is a disease.

Though, so is forgetfulness. How will we find the right balance between the two?

I took a look at all the maps we've made over the last month. They ARE pointing me somewhere. Though not where I expected and not in the way maps normally point you somewhere.

It sure will be nice to see you again sometime. In the meantime, I hope this envelope will be of use.

Dearest dearest Nancine. Handle with care.

Your old friend,
Dave

P.S. The rest of the gang says hi.
